JUDICIARY OFFERS FREE SEMINAR: "WHEN AND HOW TO USE A LAWYER AND HOW TO FIND ONE"

The Hawai'i State Judiciary is sponsoring a free, informational session on the topic, "When and How to Use a Lawyer and How to Find One" from 12 noon to 1:00 p.m., Wednesday, September 22, 2004, in the Supreme Court courtroom at 417 South King Street.

Intermediate Court of Appeals Associate Judge Daniel R. Foley will speak about when to involve a lawyer and what to expect once a lawyer is contacted. Participants will also learn how to select a lawyer and about a lawyer's training, duties, qualifications, and responsibilities.

Foley has been an Associate Judge at the Intermediate Court of Appeals since October 2000. Previously, he served as a partner in the law firm of Partington & Foley where he handled federal and state civil rights cases for 11 years. He was also an Adjunct Professor of Civil Rights at the William S. Richardson School of Law. From 1984 to 1987, Foley was the legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Hawai'i, and from 1975 to 1983, he was counsel to various Micronesian governmental bodies, constitutional conventions, and organizations. He received his law degree in 1974 from the University of San Francisco.

The "Lunch 'n' Learn the Law" program is a series of free informational seminars for the general public featuring topics relating to specific areas of the law and the courts. Volunteer presenters include judges, attorneys, court officials, and other subject-matter experts.
